2007 PLAN SUMMARY

1. Please write a brief summary of the 2007 grant request. Please include information regarding your district's planned activities including committee meetings, training, attorney recognition, newspaper or magazine articles, marketing and promotion. The grant request should cover needs to be addressed, methods, target audience, anticipated outcomes, and how past difficulties will be addressed.

Needs to be addressed: We believe our methodology is sound, so our goal for 2007 is to utilize technology to serve more clients quickly and efficiently, and to better use our volunteer resources. Current methods and how they will be augmented: About one-fourth of our cases are placed with attorneys. Other cases are addressed as described on the supplemental sheet. We do not market to the public aside from brochures placed at social service agencies and courts. We spend more time cultivating attorney volunteers, believing that if we take care of the attorneys, the attorneys will take care of the clients. "Cultivation" of attorneys is done in the following ways:

1) We place meritorious cases: Cases are selected and prepared for placement so that the attorney will be able to accomplish something significant and gratifying to both client and attorney. Judge Robbins and Diane Walker, the PBA, choose cases where the attorney's work will protect a vital interest such as shelter, safety, personal or family integrity, and income preservation. For 2007, we want to improve access for our clients. Currently, we have one phone line for client calls and an answering machine. The other phone line is occupied by dial-up internet. We are requesting wireless internet, freeing up an additional line for calls, plus a surcharge to add voice mail.

2) We provide attorneys with defined, concrete obligations: In addition to educating clients on what is expected of them, we define the problem precisely for the attorney. Law students do preliminary investigation, research, or drafting of pleadings so that an attorney has an easier job. For 2007, we want to enable volunteer law students to conduct research more easily. Currently they have to go elsewhere to get internet access or bump the PBA from her computer, which has dial-up, donated, internet access. We are asking for installation of and payment for wireless internet so that students, who all have laptop computers, can conduct research onsite.

3) We provide continuing attorney support: Law student assistance is free to the attorney, as are forms and peer support. However, our most appreciated service is free mediation and guardians ad litem. For 2007, we want to be able to do another guardian ad litem or mediation training. We were without funding in 2006 to conduct an independently sponsored CLE, although the PBA made a CLE presentation on ethics and we will be able to present a CLE for the Monroe County Bar Association in the fall of 2006.

4) Recognition and appreciation. The PBA makes cookies or buys roses for each volunteer attorney and this will continue. The four counties we serve have an annual quad-county golf outing, and on the years those are coordinated by a D10 board member, (2004, 2006), we hold a recognition/fundraising event at no extra cost to D10. For 2007, we would like to hold a more formal event to recognize attorneys, modeled after District 11, whose volunteer base is similar to ours. This would include a buffet luncheon, awards, a favor, such as a candy bar, and free CLE.

5) Cases we do not place: The cases we do not place with attorneys are as important as those we do. The brief services, advice and pro se forms we give to clients are not only a service to the client, but to the legal community at large. Clients who are helped with "preventative care" documents like wills and contracts are less likely to be in court later on. Attorneys and judges appreciate having somewhere to refer a litigant who is struggling. It also supports District 10's image in the legal community if we are perceived as pulling our weight in helping clients instead of just referring out hard cases. For 2007, we want technology to serve pro se and brief services clients more quickly and efficiently. Currently we have a paper case management system because our computers are donated, unreliable and not networked. This year's budget thus includes a quote for hardware and software that is explained in more detail on the budget page.

Definitions

Case: A legal matter referred to and accepted by a pro bono attorney volunteer. This includes mediation and GAL services.

Volunteer Attorney: An attorney who has rendered pro bono service to at least one low-income client during the year or accepted a pro bono referral from the identified program. This does not include attorneys who are on the list of pro bono volunteers but who have never taken a case. The case numbers do not include cases screened, only cases actually referred to a pro bono attorney. This also includes an attorney who has worked solely on a pending pro bono case that was neither opened nor closed during the reporting year.

Case Type: Please use the abbreviations listed in Indiana Supreme Court Administrative Rule 8(B)(3) or any other defined abbreviation.

IOLTA funding accounts for 84 % of total pro bono provider budget. Please state the percentage of volunteers and cases which are attributable to IOLTA funding 84%. If this percentage is substantially more than the percentage of IOLTA funding, please explain.

2005 REPORT

Please provide a short summary of how the provision of pro bono service is coordinated in your district, including the intake process, the relationships of pro bono providers in the district, how referrals are made, and how reporting is done.

CASA and the Protective Order Project find their own volunteer attorneys, but encourage those attorneys to report their hours to District 10 as well. Indiana Legal Services-Bloomington sends over applications and intakes directly to us. Because D10's forms are based on ILS's questionnaires, we do not redo the interviews, but ask only that the clients call D10 directly so that we know they are interested in D10's services. Every other referring agency, whether it is a court, clinic (such as the IU Child Advocacy Clinic), or social service agency (such as Middleway House, Area 10 on Aging or the Center for Behavioral Health), gives the potential client D10's phone number, and the client must then call D10 to do a telephone intake with a law student. The PBA, often with Judge Robbins' help, decides whether to place the case with a local attorney or to give in-house services. The client is notified within two (2) weeks of the help D10 is able to give. For cases to be placed, the PBA solicits volunteer attorneys who would be well-suited to a particular case because of expertise or inclination. If the volunteer attorney agrees to represent the client, we send the file, a form letter reminding the attorney of support D10 can provide, a sample client agreement, and a case completion report. Most of the attorneys who get these case completion reports forget to fill them out, so they are reminded. However, since we conduct a year-end telephone survey of all pro bono hours done in the district, these hours are generally reported at the time of the survey, even if no form is completed.

Local attorneys occasionally want to pick their pro bono clients, and will tell a client they have interviewed that they will take that person's case if D10 refers them. The client then calls D10 for a financial application. We do not usually do a legal interview in that instance, but ensure that the client is lower income, and send out the usual form letters to the attorney and client. This allows D10 to track the case and the attorney to access D10 services such as malpractice insurance and law student support.

Please describe any special circumstances, including difficulties encountered, affecting your District's 2005 implementation of its plan.

This year we saw a 71% increase in caseload over 2004, which strained our technological and personnel resources. For most of the year D10 used a ragtag assemblage of computers including the PBA's personal computer, an unpredictable Windows NT computer, and a Windows 98 computer with no working floppy or CD drive. We could not transfer files among computers and could not network. Our software was also sub-par; for instance, we had donated 1998 versions of bankruptcy software which meant that we had outdated forms, which necessitated numerous supplemental filings. We did not have a scanner or Adobe PDF software for most of the year, which hindered our ability to file electronically where courts required diskettes. The worst month was March 2006, during which our current multifunction copier/printer/fax (MFC) died, leaving us without a fax and printer. When we bought a $43 adapter and cord for another donated MFC, we got smoke coming out of the "new" donated MFC, which was a discouraging waste of money. While we had many other donated printers, each had a different driver or inkjet requirements so it was not always cost-efficient to use them. Thus during March 2006, we often had no functioning printer at all. Also in March, the PBA's computer crashed, leaving us without data and forms, or access to the internet or email for about two weeks. After the PBA's computer was fixed, we tried to reinstall WordPerfect, only to find the disk had become corrupted so we can no longer use that software. We were thus almost completely nonfunctional for March. We also had difficulties in staff coverage. While we have 15-17 students during the fall and spring, most of them can work only on Thursdays and Fridays, and there is much less continuity, since most students can only give two hours a week. It would be incredibly useful to have a regular, part-time staff person here during the fall and spring semesters to insure continuity of work and intake. Last but not least, the PBA broke a tooth in March, and later that month had an injury that left her foot black and useless for about a week. The foot healed on its own without medical treatment, and the PBA paid out of pocket for the dental work. However, these injuries reminded the normally-healthy PBA of the importance of health and dental insurance.

*Please note that 2005 projected income cannot be found on the PBA's hard drive, possibly because it crashed in March 2006. Nor can we find a paper copy

Phone costs are higher this year because we had received a large credit to our phone bill in 2005 due to a dispute with the phone company.

Postage is low halfway through the year because we received a large in-kind donation of stamps, plus the PBA has not submitted for reimbursement all of the postage she has advanced.

*Our landlord has donated our space to date, and there was some question as to whether we would be able to keep our verbal, month-to-month lease. It does appear we will stay in this space, and fair market value of the rent is $3,000. We are not sure when, if ever, the landlord will start charging us. However, since our original agreement with him was for a year's free rent, starting in March 2004, it seems likely that he will eventually start charging us.

Budget Narrative

Please provide descriptions of the following line items in the foregoing budget chart, by item number, in the space provided. Please explain any other budget entries that are not self-explanatory, including other sources of income.

Lines (B)(1), (2), (3), (4) Please indicate the number of hours per week for each personnel position, rate of pay, and all employee benefits.

(B)(1) The PBA is an independent contractor who has worked for three years for $36,000 a year, with a one-time bonus of $1,250 in 2005 for the extra labor necessitated from supervising law students. We are asking for a raise for her this year of $5,000, to bring her to $41,000, which is a 14% increase and reflective of the fact that she works now, and has always worked, full time, at 40+ hours per week.

(B)(3) We are also requesting $5,040 to hire a part-time independent contractor to help with routine office tasks such as filing, letters and receptionist duties. It is contemplated that this independent contractor will work throughout the school year, or for 36 weeks, to supplement the gaps in law student coverage. We expect to pay this person $7/hour for 20 hours worth of work per week.

(B)(4) We want to provide health insurance benefits for the PBA for the first time in three years. This cost of $4,162.50 represents the cost of the insurance premiums to the PBA, plus an amount to cover the extra income taxes this will generate for the PBA. Because the PBA is an independent contractor, the $4,162.50 will be paid to her pursuant to her contract, leaving her to purchase the insurance and pay applicable self-employment taxes.

Line (C)(1) Please describe the occupancy cost in terms of square footage, utilities or other amenities and indicate whether the occupancy cost is above or below the market rate for that space. Since we moved here, the landlord has not charged us rent. This is obviously below the market rate. However, the landlord may decide to start charging us fair market value rent at any time, which is $250/month.

ANNUAL TIMETABLE FOR SUBMISSION OF FORMS AND CHECKS:

January 1:	Checks distributed
July 1:	Annual report, plan and grant application due to IPBC
November:	Notification of awards
December 1:	IBF grant agreement due and revised budget due

Other D10 activity on behalf of clients: D10 places about one-fourth of the cases which go through our office, which means only the most vital, meritorious, and complicated cases go to volunteer attorneys. We have had 28 law student volunteers since July 2005, and with the PBA, they have processed 313 cases. Here is how these cases break down.

Currently open: 49 These are cases which are either awaiting placement with an attorney, or which are currently being helped by the PBA and students with forms, advice or brief services.

Placed: 81 These are cases which have been placed with attorneys.

Advised: 58 These are clients who have been advised with letters, in-person meetings, or both. The PBA gives advice, with the support of law student research.

Helped with forms: 24 These are clients who have been given forms, but do their cases pro se. Cases range from our having done complete bankruptcies, with the client doing the creditors' meeting themselves, to our completing motions or agreements for clients, with the clients' doing any follow-up hearings. We also help some clients just with discovery or GAL forms.

Brief services: 11 These are most often wills and powers of attorneys, but may represent other services such as letters to collection agents telling them to cease contact under the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act. The services are done by students with PBA supervision of the execution. The difference between this and "helped with forms" is that the case is completed with the execution of the documents.

Client withdrew: 43 Occasionally a client tells us they have solved the problem elsewhere, or disappears without contact information. Most often though, "client withdrew" means that we have offered services less than attorney placement, such as help with forms or advice, and the client has not taken us up on that offer. After a certain deadline, these cases are closed out.

Rejected with referral: 18 These are cases which we do not have the resources to take, or which for some reason are better suited to another service.

Rejected outright: 24 These are cases which are not meritorious, or for which we have no resources and for which there are no referrals available.

Conflict of interest: 5 We do occasionally form an attorney-client relationship with some clients, and some cases are conflicted out.

The pro bono hours survey: D10 annually conducts a phone survey of all attorneys in the 4-county area, which means we capture much of the pro bono work that would ordinarily go "under the radar." Attorneys are emailed that a law student will be calling about their pro bono work. "Pro bono" is defined as civil work for lower income clients (or nonprofits which benefit the poor) which is undertaken by the attorney with the understanding that the client will not be charged. Pro bono work reported in this survey includes cases taken from D10 or other organizations such as CASA or the IU Protective Order Project, cases taken upon the behest of a judge, or self-directed work. "Self-directed" work is defined to the survey participant as a "case that you've taken out of the goodness of your heart, with or without a referral. For example, many of you regularly do cases for clients whose stories move you, or for nursing homes or agencies, or past clients who can no longer afford to pay you." Attorneys are also asked about board service and nonprofit community service such as Project Peace. This year, 124 attorneys reported pro bono work, although not all of these were D10 cases. During this survey, we do not receive call-backs from every attorney; at some point, we worry about pestering attorneys, and particularly with attorneys who have taken D10 cases, we may impute an industry standard to a case we know they have. Although not all the pro bono cases reported originated with D10, this survey is important to D10's mission of promoting pro bono work. It raises name recognition of D10 and lets attorneys know that we can provide support for pro bono work. It encourages accountability among attorneys for all pro bono work and reinforces that pro bono is expected of them. Finally, it lets attorneys know that even "under the radar" work is a valuable service to the community, and reminds them that they should be proud of it.
